

Ramayana Epic Poem

The wonderful gods met in wonderful heaven,
to discuss the one they had always have dreaded.

The one they had dreaded and hated so long,
had came to Earth and started to do wrong.

Then Rama went down to Earth, nice and tall,
to kill Ravana and end it all.

So Rama split his personalities without the needs of hospitality.

Down there on Earth Rama had met friends who knew that good was better than bad too.

The friends names were Hanuman and Jatayu who both did good karma and followed their dharma too.

When Rama's incarnations took Sita out,
Ravana had kidnapped her and Sita started to shout!

Alas no one could shouts,
so she started to get mad and started to pout.

When Rama's incarnations found that Sita was gone,
they didn't do nothing or dare yawn!

Rama's incarnations got help from the Monkey King!
With the Monkey King's army who all can sing!

They all went forth to the palace of Ravana
where the terrible Ravana and demons kept Sita!

The monkeys that were good had started to rage
and fought the demons, wave after wave.

At last they have won this glorious battle!
At the sign of their triumph, they started to brattle!

At last they all went home to take a break,
and sleep and eat for their very own sake!
